“ Okay Preston, this is tough. I hate you were taken from the kids like this. And boy, your mom... Your mom is hurt. She's crushed. I hate that I felt like our last meeting was the beginning of better co-parenting. It felt so successful, in 6 years we could not figure it out. I felt like you wasn't being combative and I wasn't being bossy. It fit for the first time like a perfect puzzle.

Your obituary look good. Your mom did a great job with photo selection. You know Meca got ALL the photos lol. It's a specific picture that I love for you up there. It's your fathers day gift. You rocking the #1 DAD shirt with us on it, Hermes belt (ssssllllppppp saucy) and the white & gold Js. You know how you do with the freshness. Dria name is spelled wrong and since you spelled her name yourself I'll get it corrected online, your mom don't have to fix that little issue.

They miss you much Preston. & Preston is going through it. He can't, don't, and won't ever understand what and why. I just really pray he grow up to be the best person he can. Stay with him. By his side, give him good guidance.

I'll keep the kids close to your mom as I can. Keep the visits going. She needs them. I'll call and check on her every now and then myself too. You don't have to ask anything of me, I just remember what it used to be and I know I'd never want something like this to happen.

It still don't feel real to me but I have to accept what it is... Goodbye Preston D'Aundrae Jones Sr. I got Dria & Preston forever and they are a piece of you forever.

“ My heart goes out to the family, especially his mom and sister. I remember when we were in Aulander Elementary together (it was lit back in the day). Although Preston and I weren't cool, Preston was a chill dude to most. I just wish he could be here with his family and friends so he could enjoy the holidays and watching his kids grow up. Continue to protect and watch over your family, Preston because you will definitely be missed.
